The Grand Jury Instructed.
Yesterday afternoon Judge Steadman charged the grand jury. He delivered the usual instructions as to the duties devolving upon the grand jury, emphasizing the important points. The charge to which a large number looked forward to was the one relative to violations of the Sunday law. The judge dwelt on this at some length, saying that although aware that the city charter gave the city court exclusive jurisdiction over violations of the Sunday law between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., he would instruct the jurors to bring in verdicts against each and every violator of the law. He added that he knew that one of the learned judges of the court of appeals was of opinion that differed from his views on the subject, but that notwithstanding this he was constrained to instruct the jury in the way he had; that the opinion of one of the judges of that court was not binding, and that the entire court should concur in the opinion of the learned judge in question, he would, as a law-abiding citizen and in obedience to his oath of office, give to the grand jury the opinion of the higher court. However, so long as only the opinion of one of the judges had been delivered on the question, he would after the matured and deliberate consideration of the twelve jurors to find indictments against all who sold liquor on Sunday. The judge intimated that the new charter of the city was unconstitutional with respect to this question and the validity of it.

The Following gentlemen composed the grand jury:
J. W. Weatherford, N. M. Washer, R. J. Weatherford, B. J. Shapp, J. M. A. D. Nichols, G. C. Harwell, J. D. Houston, John W. Walker, J. H. Fitzgerald, J. L. Purvis and W. P. Miller.

AN IMPORTANT INDUSTRY.
The Manchester Cotton and Woolen Mills Will be in Full Blast Next Month.
Another important industry will soon be started in Fort Worth, the Manchester cotton and woolen mills, which are situated two miles east of the city, and will, by October 1, be operating to their fullest capacity and turning out cotton and woolen goods for the trade in Texas. The establishment has ample financial backing, and before and after the mill will be the most important and most extensive mills of the kind in the state. Work on another machinery building will be commenced as soon as possible, and the carding and spinning apparatus, which have already been ordered, will arrive in October.
B. Blankenship, president of the North Texas national bank, and W. C. Howard, a prominent manufacturer of Dallas, are prominent managers of the enterprise, and have signified their intention of operating the mill to its fullest capacity. George Taylor, the manager, still holds his share of the stock and will be superintendent of the mill.
The bonds which were issued by the former owners have been taken up and cancelled, the mill owners having the necessary finances for the operation of the plant.
Mr. Fairbanks of Dallas is in the east making arrangements for bringing operators from there. The mill company is anxious to procure hands and will advance transportation to any such desiring work.

POLYTECHNIC COLLEGE.
A Fine Opening Yesterday—Every Room Filled With Pupils.
The Polytchnic college began its career as an educational institution on yesterday. If the building can be taken as a basis for the future, then the Polytchnic has a wonderful life ahead of it. President Addison stated to a reporter that every room in the boarding department, for both young men and young women, was full, and that as many more could have been secured if there had been place to put them. This is a wonderful record for a school to make on its first appearance before the public. A. J. Addison, who has seen the fine location of the Polytchnic, and who knows the ability of Dr. Addison as an educator, are not surprised at the large number of pupils who have knocked for admission at the doors of Fort Worth's latest educational institution.
In addition to the large number of boarding pupils, there are quite a number from the city, who will go out every morning in the wagonette. As soon as the street railroad is completed to the college, the local patronage will be greatly increased.
A groovy company of people from the city attended the opening exercises. After singing the president read a scripture lesson, the entire company repeating the verse after him. Prayer was then offered by Rev. J. M. Barrens. Then followed more music and some excellent recitations by Miss Cooper, teacher of elocution, and by Adkins Wessie Addison, a member of the faculty. Rev. T. C. Ragsdale, Rev. W. F. Lloyd, Rev. J. M. Barrens and Rev. W. P. Wilson each made short addresses, speaking in very encouraging terms of the outlook for the college. There seems to be a general conviction that this school will be a success from the start.

SEEKING THEIR FATHER.
The Quest of Two Young Men, Now Residing at Mansfield.
Two young men by the name of Hilburn were in the city yesterday in search of their father, Jacob Hilburn, whom they have not heard of since the war. The young men now reside at Mansfield, and hearing that their father was in Texas, immediately set out to find him.
The father of the young men entered the army and left the two boys and their mother in the hands of a father-in-law. At the time of the surrender, the mother of the boys died, and they were left with their grandfather. Since the war they have heard nothing of their father. They came to Texas this summer and settled near Mansfield. In some way they heard that Jacob Hilburn, their father, had been in Texas ever since the war was over, and they were anxious to find him. It is understood that he went to Thackerville, Indian Territory, to procure work at his trade, that of a blacksmith. Hilburn is a sixty-five years old, weighs about one hundred and fifty or one hundred and sixty pounds, has one finger off of one hand, fair skin, pale blue eyes, sandy hair, and has front teeth filled with gold. The boys are anxious for any tidings of their father, and any information will be gratefully received.

Miss Miriam Nelke's Recital.
The seating capacity of the Cambridge Presbyterian church was strained to accommodate the cultured and discriminating audience that assembled to hear select readings by Miss Miriam Nelke, teacher of elocution and physical culture in the Fort Worth university, this being the occasion of her introduction to the Fort Worth people.
The reputation of the lady, as one skilled in her art, had preceded her from her home in Quincy, Ill., and while this precursor whetted the intellectual appetite of those present, their expectations were destined to be in no wise disappointed. The recitations of the "Mice at Play" and "Autumn" brought out the versatile singer's talents and showed how completely pathos and comedy, laughter and tears can co-exist in a gifted mind. Following these recitations was a sonata performed with much expression by Miss Sue Terrell, which proclaimed her ability as an interpreter of difficult Beethoven. Her "Hail to the Heroes" and "Scene from Mary Stuart" displayed the wonderful play of the features which Miss Nelke possesses to a historic degree, and the rapid descent from a serious supplication, and supplication back to scorn again, betokens the remarkable flexibility of her voice in its adjustment to the trend of the piece. Selections from the Deirats system of expression (in Grecian costume) with its infinite variety of graceful postures and attitudes made its advocate a cynosure of wondrous attention. It teaches that a unification of heart, mind and body must conspire to produce the eurythmy of the human structure. The effect was aided by a piano selection by Miss Terrell, a piano selection by Miss Terrell, and a humorous description of a visit to the South, interspersed with romantic incidents constituted the finale. Miss Nelke is an artist inspired with a high ideal, and it is not too much to say that she reaches its utmost branches.

Charged with Robbery and Assault.
Deputy Sheriff Teague of Longview arrived in the city last night with a prisoner by the name of Taylor Davis, whom he had captured yesterday at Dallas. Davis is charged with being implicated in the robbery of Mrs. Price, which occurred two or three days since at Longview. The house was entered and Mrs. Price assaulted and injured severely by the burglars.

PERSONAL.
Madam Hogue is in town, stopping at the Lindell hotel.
John F. Scayne and W. P. Lake are in Chicago on business.
A. F. Nicholson went to Lebanon, Mo., yesterday on business.
Mrs. G. E. Bennett has gone to Missouri to visit friends and relatives.
Thomas Lake went to Philadelphia yesterday, where he will enter college.
Miss Julia Hogg left last night for Boston, where she will enter the Boston Conservatory of music.
Miss Dora Neal and Miss Charlotte Wood of this city are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bartlett of Harbor Springs, Mich.
Misses Annie and Belle Cooper, Anna White and Mattie Swayer left yesterday for Knoxville, Ill., where they will attend school the present year.

Collected Valuable Historical Facts.
Dr. Lyman Copeland Draper was for thirty-five years secretary of the Wisconsin State Historical society, and almost to the day of his death (he died of paralysis at the age of seventy-six) cherished the design of writing a series of sketches of early western men. It is reasonably certain, however, that he would not have succeeded in the attempt, as he was a collector of facts and valuable documents rather than a writer. Indeed, his work on the "Battle of Kings Mountain" is the only book of importance he ever produced, and though it is a wonderful treasury of personal experiences, it is after all a work of reference rather than a volume to read.
Dr. Draper was born Sept. 4, 1815, in Erie county, N. Y., and was reared on a farm. In 1830 he went to Mobile, and while but a lad commenced gathering material relating to western history and soon became an authority on that subject. In 1838 he began his long series of correspondence with pioneers, collecting information, and continued this at Buffalo and Philadelphia, where he resided. In 1853 he took the place of secretary of the society at Madison, Wis., and it now has 129,600 volumes, mostly of his collection.

THE "SCOTTISH SPURGEON."
An Eloquent Divine Now Visiting the United States.
Rev. John McNeill, sometimes called the "Scottish Spurgeon," and probably the most popular divine in London next to the great Spurgeon, has recently visited the United States for several months, and has been a great success. He is a native of Scotland, and his career is a sort of ministerial romance. He began active life as a developed success of railroad porter, and developed such powers of address and persuasion that he soon became a minister, and from the start a very popular one.
He is at present pastor of Regent Square church, one of the most prominent places of worship in London. That building was originally erected for the famous and eccentric Edward Irving, then (1834) the most popular preacher in London and an orator of marvellous power. Noblemen and members of parliament, noted beauties and ladies of the highest rank struggled for a place in his congregation.
For seven years this popularity continued, and then Irving "went off," as they phrase it there—that is, became a fanatic on prophecy and the "gift of tongues." Dr. James Hamilton succeeded him at Regent Square, then Dr. Oswald Dykes, and after him came, in 1889, this "eloquent Scotchman." The church and the man are equally remarkable.

Now is your time to buy heating and cooling stores cheap.
W. A. FAIRBANKS, Receiver.

Is Tennyson a Great Poet?
Is Tennyson a great poet? Your reply to that will depend on whether you think the nineteenth century is a great century. For there can be no doubt that he represents the century better than any other man. The thoughts, the feelings, the desires, the conflicts, the aspirations of our age are mirrored in his verse. And if you say that this alone prevents him from being great, because greatness must be solitary and independent, I answer, "No," for the great poet does not anticipate the conceptions of his age; he only anticipates their expression. He says what is in the heart of the people, and says it so beautifully, so lucidly, so strongly, that he becomes their voice.
Now, if this is of ours, with its Renaissance of art and its catholic admiration of the beautiful in all forms, classical and romantic; with its love of science and its joy in mastering the secrets of nature; with its deep passion of humanity protesting against social wrongs and dreaming of social regeneration; with its introspective spirit searching the springs of character and action; with its profound interest in the problems of the unseen and its reaction from the theology of the head to the religion of the heart—if this age of ours is a great age, then Tennyson is a great poet, for he is the clearest, sweetest, strongest voice of the century—Rev. Dr. Van Dyke in Century.
